ABOUT ME

Telecommunications Engineering student with a strong interest in communication systems, embedded technology, and practical engineering solutions. Experienced in RF and cellular networks, fiber optic infrastructure, computer networking, and IoT-based systems through industry internships, technical projects, and professional training.

Combining hands-on technical experience with leadership and organizational skills, I enjoy solving engineering problems and developing reliable systems that integrate hardware, software, and communication technologies. Committed to continuous learning and professional growth in the telecommunications and technology industry.
